Denise Bourdet of the Pacifica Washington Bureau recently interviewed Clyde Wallace, owner and manager of The Spy Shop (New York Avenue, Washington, D.C.), which sells electronic surveillance equipment. The half-hour program was broadcast by KPFA 13 Jan 72.

Miss Bourdet closed the program with the following comment: "After all, as Supreme Court Justice Lewis Powell said, 'The public has nothing to fear from electronic surveillance, as long as the public is careful.'" There was no indication that this was a direct quotation of statement by Powell, and source and date were not given.